Once there was a Dragon who lived outside a restaurant in Pink Bunny Town. His name was Luke and he was homeless. Also, he had very bad breath. He was homeless because he was a dragon and the entire town was full of pink bunnies, except for Sheriff Hoodoo Brown, who was a black bunny.

One day Sheriff Brown paid Luke a visit. He wanted him to leave Pink Bunny Town because he was a dragon and also because he had bad breath. Sheriff Brown said there wasn't room in Pink Bunny Town for a dragon.

Luke didn't want to cause any trouble, and he did need to do something about his bad breath. So he went out to the edge of town to look for his friend Pewter Rabbit. Pewter had been run out of town by Sheriff Brown because he was pewter and not pink.

Pewter told Luke that he knew of a dentist in Pink Bunny Town. They went to the office. At the office Susie, the dental assistant, was not sure that Dr. Floss treated dragons. They had only ever treated pink bunnies. When Susie asked Dr. Floss about it, Dr. Floss inquired if the dragon had any money. Dr. Floss was always interested in making money.

Luke didn't have any money, but he did have a medallion that he said he'd had forever. The medallion appeared to have a dragon family crest on it and Dr. Floss accepted it as payment and proceeded to treat Luke's bad breath.

Before they were done, Sheriff Brown showed up at Dr. Floss's office. Sheriff Brown didn't like the dentist treating a dragon. He forced his way into the examining room and confronted Dr. Floss and Luke. Luke got angry and unleashed the bad fire breath on Sheriff Brown, but Dr. Floss got in the way. Suddenly, Dr. Floss's pink bunny suit melted, revealing that he was actually a dragon. He admitted that he recognized the medallion. In fact, he was Luke's father.

Together, father and son unleashed their dragon fire on Sheriff Brown and sent him running. Luke, Dr. Floss and Pewter Rabbit decided to have lunch at the Pink Bunny Restaurant.
